

17th World Congress on Advances in Oncology

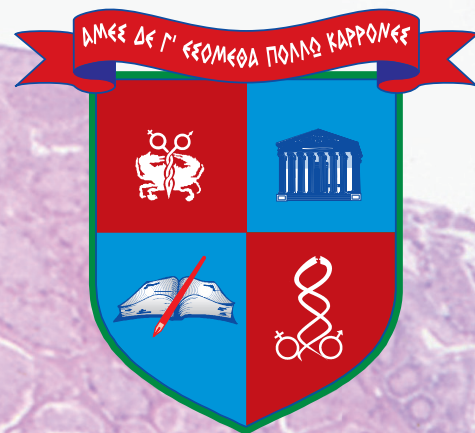

and

15th International Symposium on Molecular Medicine

October 11 - 13, 2012

Creta Maris Hotel,
Crete - Greece

A unique venue for basic and clinical research

The island of Crete

Crete, the largest island of Greece is the getaway between Europe and Africa, the home of the ancient Minoan civilization, one of the most important on earth. The scenery is constantly changing; olive trees, vineyards, orange groves, stone farmhouses, monasteries, chapels and villages on mountain slopes. Crete prides itself on endless clean beaches, beautiful blue sea, lively night life, both modern and traditional, leaving the visitor with unforgettable memories of this blessed island.

The Congress site

The Congress takes place in the superb, five-star hotel complex of the Creta Maris, Hersonissos - Crete, located on the seaside, 20 km from the Heraklion airport. Crete enjoys good weather conditions during this period. Average temperature 25°C.

Transport

Athens - Heraklion, Crete. This route is served by the Greek airlines Aegean and Olympic Air, each with several flights daily.

Registration and further information:

Professor D.A. Spandidos

Editorial Office: 10 Vriaxidos Street, Athens 116 34, Greece

Fax: +30 210 725 2922; Tel: +30 210 722 7809

e-mail: conference@spandidos-publications.com • website: www.spandidos-publications.com

Organized by the: International Journal of Oncology, Oncology Reports, International Journal of Molecular Medicine, Molecular Medicine Reports, Experimental and Therapeutic Medicine and Oncology Letters